

Complete Guide to Feng Shui Crystals

New book is a collaborative effort of two Feng Shui Connections members

This new book has been months in the making ... but Feng Shui Practitioners Terri Perrin (author) and Maureen Johnson (editor) believe it has been well worth the investment of time. The Fine Art of Intention™ Feng Shui: Complete Guide to Feng Shui Crystals book rolled off the presses in mid- December.

“Although there has been a wealth of excellent Feng Shui books published in North America in the past 25 years,” explains Perrin, “most cover a vast range of information and left me with unanswered questions on specific topics. The Fine Art of Intention™ Feng Shui: Complete Guide series is being developed to ‘fill in the blanks’ by providing comprehensive information on specific topics. In this first installment, a Complete Guide to Feng Shui Crystals, my goal has been to provide readers with a thorough understanding of one of the most frequently recommended -- and often misunderstood -- Feng Shui cures and enhancements: multi-faceted leaded crystal spheres.”

In addition to working closely with Maureen Johnson and HH Crystal Chu, Perrin sought feedback and advice from well-respected BTB Feng Shui practitioners and authors David Daniel Kennedy, Karen Rauch Carter and Dawn Hankins.

She also worked with a Vancouver-Island photographer, Lisa Graham (www.seadance.ca), to create a series of crystal photographs that are a highlight of the book and have been made into a series of note cards and a poster.

Easy to read charts and floor plans provide a quick reference guide to various Feng Shui scenarios and how hanging crystals can cause an energy shift. The result is a book that was described by one practitioner as ‘the definitive guide to Feng Shui crystals!’

This clear crystal is creatively positioned in front of a hand-blown glass bowl. This unique item was selected because its colours and design represent the free-flowing, undulating nature of water – the natural element for the Career & Life Path sector of the BTB Feng Shui Bagua.

A crystal suspended from a ceiling fan is believed to disperse, slow and redirect spiraling chi.

Whether you are completely new to the practice of Feng Shui or are a long-standing believer in its influence on energy, this guide will help give power to your Feng Shui cures and enhancements ... and bring about the positive life changes you desire.

Crystals as Energy Cures

What makes multi-faceted leaded crystal spheres one of the most powerful Feng Shui cures? The late His Holiness Professor Lin Yun recommended them because of what they do with light, both visually and spiritually. He believed that the light energy filtering through a crystal changes the energy of the surrounding space, in effect emitting and absorbing energy or ch'i (pronounced chee), as it is called in Feng Shui.

It is a spectacular sight when sunlight shines on a crystal that is hanging in a window! The patterns from a crystal that is bathed in sunlight sparkle and dance around the room ... providing a visual indication of how far-reaching their energy changing and enhancing power can be.

A crystal can be hung outside in a tree or on any man-made structure, such as an arbor or gazebo. Its energy-enhancing qualities are just as effective outdoors as they are indoors ... and they sparkle magnificently in the sunshine

A leaded crystal absorbs and then refracts visible light into the seven-colour rainbow spectrum, a spiritual cure in itself that represents its power for life transformation. As the sunlight streams in, each facet of the crystal reflects another perspective of reality, further expanding the potential and energy in the space.

While the practice and study of Feng Shui is several thousand years old, the use of crystal spheres as energy cures and enhancements is relatively new. Their place as ritual Feng Shui objects was developed and introduced by the HH Professor Lin Yun, who was the founder of the Black Sect Tantric Buddhist – or BTB – Feng Shui School.

His Holiness also made use of ritual objects that are not commonly used in other schools. In addition to multi-faceted crystal spheres, he recommended the use of bamboo flutes, mirrors, Chinese coins and plants. Likewise, other Feng Shui schools may recommend cures and enhancements that are not common in BTB Feng Shui.

Professor Lin Yun was an enlightened and cultivated Feng Shui Master who blended ancient Tibetan Buddhism practices with Chinese philosophies and traditions. When he came to North America in the 1980s, he further adapted BTB Feng Shui to the North America lifestyle. This type of assimilation, he said, was a natural progression very similar to how Feng Shui evolved over the centuries as it moved from Tibet to China and beyond.

“While BTB theories and practices may differ from the ancient schools, His Holiness always gave credit to his early teachers and held their knowledge and power in high regard,” explains HH Khadro Crystal Chu Rinpoche, the new leader of the BTB Feng Shui School. “Professor had spiritual powers and high enlightenment. He knew how Feng Shui affected individuals and he recognized multi-faceted leaded crystal spheres for their power.”

Crystal Clear Energy at Work

Crystals add new energy vibrations to a space and redirect energy in a more beneficial direction. In doing so, they protect you from chaotic and negative ch'i.

Because of their prismatic shape, cut and quality, crystal spheres are powerful tools for expanding possibilities, removing blocks and brightening any situation. When used as a cure, a crystal can disperse destructive, rushing or stagnant ch'i. When used as an enhancement, a crystal will expand and uplift beneficial ch'i. Although other leaded crystal ornaments may be used as Feng Shui enhancements, multi-faceted leaded crystal spheres are considered to be the most effective and auspicious.

A crystal can be used on the exterior of a home to fill in the space of a missing piece of the bagua. In this example, the crystal should be hung near the pillar on the left.

To visualize how they work at refracting energy, think of a rotating disco ball and how the energy in a room changes when a strobe light is directed at it.
